

ASIKO TV

THE SOUL OF AFRICA

— PROPERTIES & POSITIONING

One company, three properties, one story

FAST-On-Africa is the engine. asiko.africa is the destination. asiko.live is the funnel. Together they are an African-owned platform for African stories — positioned against AVO TV.

1 • The three properties

FAST-On-Africa

FOA • @fastonafrica

WHAT IT IS

The engine. Create your FAST channel with FOA and get a production-ready HLS you own. Flight it on asiko.africa, or take it and distribute anywhere. Non-exclusive.

WHO FOR

Channel owners, broadcasters, creators — B2B

REVENUE

Channel build / setup + playout-as-a-service (running the channel) + optional rev-share asiko.africa

the product

WHAT IT IS

Media Icons' owned destination — the consumer FAST app. Target line-up: 110 channels — 2 per African country + a diaspora channel + the pan-African flagship.

WHO FOR

Viewers — Africa and the diaspora (UK / US / CA / EU)

REVENUE

The eyeballs — category-exclusive sponsorship (one advertiser per sector) + programmatic backfill asiko.live

the funnel

WHAT IT IS

Marketing site + canonical legal pages (privacy, terms). Where prospects land and are routed.

WHO FOR

Everyone before they convert — viewers, channel owners, advertisers, investors

REVENUE

None directly — it drives the other two

Parent: Media Icons Africa (Tattase TV), Lagos.

2 • How they fit together

The creator owns the output at FOA and chooses where it goes — that choice is the trust feature. FOA monetises the creation; asiko.africa monetises the audience. Two revenue lines, one shared infrastructure.

3 • Why two-sided beats a walled garden

Your own Playbook names the problem: a decade of African platforms — bank-backed, telco-backed — broke revenue-share promises. Content owners start at negative trust. A creator handing everything to a single destination is the exact fear. FOA's answer — you own your HLS, you can leave — turns that fear into the pitch. A walled garden like AVO structurally cannot offer it.

- ♦ Platform, not just an app. FOA is picks-and-shovels for the whole market; asiko.africa is one destination on top of it.
- ♦ Two revenue lines. Creation fees (FOA) are steady and low-risk; ad revenue (asiko.africa) scales with audience. One doesn't depend on the other.
- ♦ Non-exclusive by design. A channel can build with FOA and also run on AVO or Roku — you still earn on the build and your own destination.

4 • Positioning against AVO TV

	AVO TV	ASIKO / FOA
Ownership	UK company — AVO TV Ltd, Guildford	African — Lagos-built, 30-year Nigerian broadcaster at the helm
Model	Single destination (walled garden) + satellite	Two-sided — an engine (FOA) + a destination (asiko.africa)
Content owner deal	Hand over content to the platform	Build your channel, own your HLS , flight with us or not
Ads	Standard programmatic + DAA opt-outs — commodity inventory	Category-exclusive sponsorship — one advertiser per sector, priced at a premium
Audience focus	Mass-market pan-African, mostly on-continent via satellite	Diaspora-first (UK/US/CA/EU), higher-CPM, then broaden
Registration	Optional email — unlocks the VOD library	None for FAST; accounts only at the Asiko Cinemas (TVOD) stage
Scale today	120+ channels, 20M+ viewers, apps everywhere	Pre-launch — the 110-channel plan, POC live

Where Asiko wins — and where not to fight

Win	African-owned, and it's literally true. The cap table is the differentiator. Lean on it with content owners, the diaspora, African brands, cultural bodies. AVO can't claim it.
Win	The content-owner relationship. "You keep control and can leave" is the most disarming offer to the Nollywood / creator community — and unavailable to a walled garden.
Win	Category-exclusive sponsorship. Sells differentiation to telecom, banks, fintech, remittance, travel — brands with no clean way to buy pan-African / diaspora reach today.
Win	Diaspora-first. Underserved, higher CPMs, advertisers who specifically want it. Own the lane before broadening.

Win FOA powers everyone — including channels that also run on AVO. Non-exclusive. You're the infrastructure and a destination.

Don't Fight AVO on scale + free + satellite. Not winnable quickly, and the Playbook's "graveyard" warning is: don't compromise the model chasing someone else's scale.

5 • The one-liners

TO A CHANNEL OWNER

"Build your FAST channel with FAST-On-Africa. You own the feed. Flight it on asiko.africa for the diaspora audience — or take it anywhere. Your story, your control."

TO AN ADVERTISER

"Be your sector's exclusive sponsor across asiko.africa — pan-African and diaspora reach, never beside a competitor. A media buy that doesn't exist anywhere else."

TO A VIEWER

"Free African TV, no sign-up. 110 channels — every country, the diaspora, one destination. The Soul of Africa."

TO AN INVESTOR

"An African-owned, two-sided FAST platform: an engine that earns on every channel built, and a diaspora-first destination that earns on the audience. The African-owned answer to a foreign-owned incumbent."
